

With a Theology and Religion degree from the University of Exeter, you'll be able to:

- communicate effectively in an appropriate style and apply sustained written and oral arguments coherently and persuasively
- analyse and critically examine diverse forms of verbal and text-based communication
- gather, sift, interpret and organise substantial quantities of diverse information in structured ways
- exercise independent thought and judgement in handling information and arguments in a critical and self-reflective manner
- comprehend and develop intricate concepts in an open-ended way that involves an understanding of aims and consequences
- work with others through the presentation of ideas and information and the collective negotiation of solutions

Where can your degree take you?

Skills, expertise and knowledge gained via a Theology and Religion degree are important if you want to pursue a career in teaching, research or consider a vocation as a minister of religion.

A degree in Theology and Religion will also equip you with skills that will allow you to move into other areas of employment.
