PROUD SUPPORTER OF THE Technician Commitment

About the Technician Conference

The University of Exeter will be hosting its annual Technician conference on the 20th June 2024 on Penryn Campus in Cornwall.

The theme of this year’s conference is Recognition based on one of the four pillars of the Technician Commitment. Recognition is about supporting technicians to gain recognition for their expertise through professional registration, award schemes, publications and more.

The programme of the day will be tailored specifically for our 200+ technical staff who work across humanities, science, and engineering departments.

The conference allows the opportunity for our staff to network with key suppliers and providers, to learn best practice and about the latest products and services on offer.

Feedback from our previous conferences:

“Really enjoyed the workshops”
 “Great networking opportunities”
 “Fantastic conference, got to meet lots of new people”
 “Communication was excellent”
 “A nice spread of workshops and suppliers”

Location: The Exchange, Penryn Campus

The Penryn Campus offers the very latest academic, research and residential facilities set in 100 acres of countryside close to the waterside town of Falmouth, with beautiful views over the Fal estuary.

Made up of around 6,000 students, it offers a close-knit friendly community, in an arrangement that is unique as we share the campus with Falmouth University; a leading specialist arts institution. This combination creates a vibrant community of students from science, engineering, humanities and arts backgrounds.

The event itself will take place in the Exchange Building, the central hub of the Penryn campus. This beautiful building links the university library and career zone to the hospitality centre, as well as to one of our main scientific buildings, Daphne du Maurier. This location provides excellent thoroughfare of staff and students throughout the day, guaranteeing you an excellent opportunity for networking.
